The K-pop icon announced their 2024 US tour today on their official social media channels and the global superfan platform weverse. The world tour, 'RIGHT HERE,' produced by Live

Nation, includes the only New York Metro area shows on Friday, October 25, and Sunday, October 27, 2024 at UBS Arena in Belmont Park, NY, located 30 minutes from Penn Station or Grand Central via LIRR.

This marks SEVENTEEN's first US tour since 'SEVENTEEN WORLD TOUR [BE THE SUN]', which concluded in Newark in September 2022.

Since then, SEVENTEEN earned the title for the best-selling K-pop album of all time (FML with more than 6 million copies sold), which also went on to become the best-selling album worldwide last year according to the International Federation of the Phonographic Industry. The K-pop icon then made history by becoming the first K-pop group to perform on the main Pyramid Stage at Glastonbury Festival, and is poised to return to Europe in September for their headlining set at Lollapalooza Berlin.

Their latest tour series, 'SEVENTEEN TOUR 'FOLLOW' AGAIN,' attracted a whopping 380,000 fans across just 8 shows in Korea and Japan, sparking anticipation for what lies ahead with the exciting new tour.

In addition to the US tour, SEVENTEEN hinted at more shows to be added in cities across Asia in the coming months. The creative powerhouse also teased the release of their 12th Mini Album in October, promising a packed year filled with their inspiring music and boundless energy for fans all over the globe.
